It is concelled that Buford will leave Brunswick with not less than 1,000 majority, and some place it as high as 1,400. Judge Mann, on the other hand, will carry his own county (Notloway) by not less than 300, and (Nottoway) by not less than 900, and

The Political Situation.

There are certain features about the resent politicial situation that 'most we us nause." Subjects which should degive us nause. what to do.

A subject also of infinite importance to A subject also of infinite importance to us is the improvement of our highways. It is most suicidal to neglect this matter longer. It is a palpable absurdity to produce, and provide no adequate way to take what is produced to market. Our Legislature, a few years ago, attempted to pass a State road law for the betterment of our roads and, strange to say, the country representatives presented the greatest opposition to it. But good roads are a sine qua non, and the people should be educated to see that this is true. The revenues of the State could not possibly be spent in any other way to give such immediate, direct benefit and satisfaction. Do we know the views of our candidate for the Legislature on these subjects? No. Do we know that he will in good faith oppose every unnecessary appropriation, and see where there is waste of public money in order that we may have better roads without increase of taxation? We have made no inquiry on this subject.

An effort was made some time ago to hold a Constitutional convention for the purpose of devising a plan to administer our local and State affairs more efficiently and economically, but the movement failed because few prominent politicians would advocate it. Did we inquire of our candidate for nomination if he would press this matter at the next meeting of the Legislature? A negative answer would be given. Then have we not given up interest in the vital questions affecting our county and State affairs? This is a sad and serious inference to draw, but it seems warranted by the facts.

The weaple have been greatly excited over the context for the United States Senate. If an important issue were involved this would be a reason for its demanding attention, but not for its absorbing all others, as has been the case. But though a grave question was raised in this contest, if was never pressed, and virtually abandened, and therefore eliminated. Still the interest has not abated.
